Dear Mark

Thank you very much for your article .It has been peer reviewed and the Editors would very much like to accept it subject to the following changes.

1. First to go through the piece and address the BLOCK CAPITAL COMMENTS OR QUERIES IN TEXT AND IN THE FOOTNOTES.
2. To change the footnote now that the first three cases have a footnote to ensure that they are correctly cross referenced where they appear later.
3. To add a sentence or two to the introduction as this journal is for both general readership and also international readership not all readers will immediately understand equitable leases .
4. To address both in the introduction and in the conclusion why this is such a burning issue with regard to ... fairness justice etc etc perhaps its none of those but what jurisprudential issues arise from all of this.
5. At present it is over technical and needs to be made more accessible but this can be dealt with in the introduction and in the conclusion and also perhaps charting more accessibly the major changes in the introduction and explaining why they have occurred and simply spell out the basis of the principles..

If you think you can make these changes would you let me know so I may tell Christopher our production manager

Finally I have made some minor changes not to the text but to commas and footnote position in text etc.

Thank you once again Mark please work on the attached document
