National Primary Teacher Education Council
&
Universities' Council for the Education of Teachers

London Seminar: Mentoring and coaching for an enduring primary career

Location: Hamilton House, Mabledon Place, London WC1H 9BD

Friday 24th March 2017 (10am for 10.30 start – 3.30 close)

Delegate fee £90 including lunch + refreshments

This event is for teachers & teacher educators with an interest in career long primary teacher development. In the context of concern about teacher recruitment and retention, this seminar will be of particular interest to schools, enabling them to hear from leading experts in the field and share innovative practice.

Keynote Speaker: James Noble Rogers, Executive Director of the Universities' Council for the Education of Teachers

Keynote speaker:
Dr Rachel Lofthouse, Head of Education in the School of Education, Communication and Language Sciences at Newcastle University

Rachel's research interests are in professional learning for teachers and educators, based on innovative pedagogies and curriculum design and practices for coaching and mentoring. She works with teachers at all stages of their career. She is widely published on the subjects of coaching and mentoring, the innovative use of video to support practice development, practitioner enquiry and professional learning. She is co-author of 'Developing Outstanding Teaching and Learning' (now in its second edition).

Keynote speaker: Michael Green ITE Partnership and School Direct Lead at The University of Greenwich.

Greenwich has recently had a very successful outcome from a full OfSTED inspection and Michael will share some of the approaches to developing highly effective mentoring systems which the university partnership takes.

Places are limited so please sign up early to avoid disappointment
