

Rethinking Knife Crime

Elaine Williams · Peter Squires

Rethinking Knife Crime

Policing, Violence and Moral Panic?

palgrave
macmillan

Elaine Williams
University of Greenwich
London, UK

Peter Squires
University of Brighton
Brighton, UK

ISBN 978-3-030-83741-9 ISBN 978-3-030-83742-6 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-030-83742-6>

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive license to Springer Nature Switzerland AG 2021

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, expressed or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG

The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

Preface and Acknowledgements

Elaine Williams would like to acknowledge and give thanks to the youth practitioners, youth service managers, intervention workers, teachers and young participants from schools and youth centres who contributed their time, support and knowledge to the findings contained in this book. Thanks especially to the ongoing knowledge sharing and collaborative work with Ben Lindsay, Andrez Harriott, Lawrence Russell and Emmanuel Imuere, our discussions and dissatisfactions since 2008 have been a continuous motivation to keep pushing for new understanding in this field. Some of the ideas within this book originally formed part of a Ph.D. completed in the Sociology Department at the University of Goldsmiths. This initial research was made possible thanks to a scholarship from the Economic and Social Research Council and great thanks are expressed to my supervisors Les Back and Kalbir Shukra, whose guidance inspired the framework that underpins this work. Special thanks to Peter, who has been such a pleasure to work with. Peter's uniquely critical interventions in early 'knife crime' literature have been pivotal in my own research and career and to be able to continue this work alongside him has been a great privilege. Thanks also for the momentum Peter and the editorial team at Palgrave maintained throughout the COVID-19 lockdowns that pushed this project forwards and enabled us to bring it together during an otherwise challenging year.

Peter Squires would like to acknowledge the research contributions made by Arianna Silvestri, Roger Grimshaw, Enver Solomon, Richard Garside and Will McMahon, all at the Centre for Criminal Justice Studies, to some of the earlier work featured in this book. Some of the ideas presented here were tested out on students at the University of Brighton and in a couple of seminars, on ‘gangs’ and on ‘knife crime’ (an encounter with the ‘knife crime industry’ but which turned out—perhaps predictably—to be about ‘gangs’, after all), facilitated by Public Policy Exchange. Thanks also to the editors of the journal British Politics who commissioned the original article ‘The knife crime ‘epidemic’ and British politics’ (Volume 4:1) which, by several twists of serendipitous good fortune, became a small stepping-stone towards the book. In a crowded academic market place where journal articles often appear to get few reads, it has been fascinating to receive notifications from ResearchGate of ‘reads’ topping five figures. No doubt this is chiefly a reflection of the saturating levels of interest in the ‘knife crime’ phenomenon, even if the critical deconstructionist perspective we bring to it may not be quite that which many expect, an issue addressed already by Elaine. Nevertheless, it underpins our argument that ‘knife crime’ demands a serious rethinking. Thanks especially to Elaine, who has been a delight to work with—if largely remotely—during the lockdown days of 2020–21, and to our editorial team at Palgrave, Josie Taylor and Liam Inscoe-Jones.

London, UK
Brighton, UK

Elaine Williams
Peter Squires

Contents

1	'There Is no Home Office Definition of Knife Crime'	1
	When it Bleeds, it Leads	1
	'Knife Crime': Recent History, Data and Trends	4
	The Latest Trends	10
	Still Policing the Crisis	14
	Deeper Background; Longer History	27
	Towards a Different Understanding	40
	References	52
2	Knives and Violence in History and Culture: A Global History of Stabbing	61
	Knives in History and Culture	62
	Knife Fighting Cultures	75
	Knives and the Military	86
	A Global Criminology of Knife Violence?	88
	References	96

3	A Prelude to ‘Knife Crime’: Gangs, Weapons and the ‘Macpherson Effect’	107
	Introduction	107
	The Two Sides of New Labour; Youth Offending and Racialisation in the Third Way	116
	Institutionalisation of Youth Deviance	119
	Gangs, Guns and ‘Total Policing’	121
	“Institutionally Racist”: Questioning Police Legitimacy	126
	Criticism of the Report; the ‘Macpherson Effect’	129
	A Knife Code for a New Millennium	131
	Conclusion	136
	References	138
4	A Public Definition: The Making of the ‘Knife Crime’ Label	145
	Introduction	145
	When ‘Knife Crime’ Was a Scottish Problem	147
	The Case of Luke Walmsley	149
	Violence and Children: The Gold Standard of Newsworthiness	153
	Reporting the Knife Crime Report	156
	Making ‘Knife Crime’ News	162
	Making Knife Crime a ‘Black Crime’	170
	Stop and Search—“For Their Own Good”	179
	Conclusion	188
	References	189
5	A Moral Panic: The ‘War on Knife Crime’	197
	Introduction	197
	A Spike in ‘Knife Crime’?	200
	‘Knife Crime’ as Culture; Slippery Racism	203
	The War on ‘Knife Crime’	207
	From the Crisis of the Banks to the Crisis on the Streets	212
	Political Response and Public Resistance	216
	The End Game? ‘Knife Crime’ Normalisation	221
	References	238

6	The ‘Knife Crime Industry’: Knife Fetish and the Commodification of Violence Prevention	249
	Introduction	249
	The Shape of the Industry	251
	Selling Knife Crime Work	253
	Campaigning for Individual Change	259
	The Commodification of ‘Knife Crime’	264
	Police Twitter and the Fetishised Knife	271
	‘Knife Crime’ the Floating Signifier	277
	Conclusion	281
	References	283
7	The Realities of ‘Knife Crime’: Life Beneath the Label	287
	Introduction	287
	Violent Sociological Shifts: The Moment of 2007–2008	289
	Confrontation and Hostility; Experiencing Exceptional Policing	302
	Institutionalised Anti-Racism and Depoliticising ‘knife Crime’	306
	Specialisation in Youth Justice; ‘Knife Crime Work’	311
	Resilience and Retribution: Focus Group Analysis	315
	Conclusion	319
	References	320
8	A Joined-Up Approach to Sustainable Violence Prevention?	323
	Knife Crime as a Public Health Issue	323
	Sustainable Violence Reduction Strategy: Prioritising Without Stigmatising?	337
	References	350
9	Conclusion: Still Policing the Crisis?	357
	References	369
	Index	373

List of Figures

Fig. 1.1	Offences involving knives or offensive weapons: Offenders aged 10–17 as a proportion of all offenders: 2009–2019 (Source Ministry of Justice: Knife and offensive weapon sentencing statistics 10 Sept 2020: Table 2A)	6
Fig. 1.2	Knife homicide victims, by gender: England and Wales (2010–2019)	11
Fig. 1.3	Police recorded ‘Knife Crime’: 2010–2020 (*Data from Greater Manchester Police are not included in these figures on account of unresolved variations in data recording practices)	12
Fig. 1.4	The knife crime timeline 1990–2020	20
Fig. 1.5	Deviancy amplification model for knife crime	26
Fig. 1.6	Serious wounding in England and Wales: 1900–2000 (Source Offences since 1899, Home Office Dataset)	28
Fig. 1.7	Serious wounding and ‘all wounding’ in England and Wales: 1900–2000	29
Fig. 2.1	Method of killing/weapons (percentages) from the fourteenth to twenty-first centuries (Source Eisner, 2014)	75

Fig. 2.2	Proportions of knife-enabled contact crimes: rates reported in the 2007 ICVS (Source ICVS, 2007, Appendix 9, page 285)	90
Fig. 2.3	Age-standardised mortality rates (SMR) per 100,000 population amongst males aged 10–29 years from all causes of homicide and from sharp implements in selected countries in the WHO European Region 2004-206 (Source WHO and European Mortality Database)	92
Fig. 4.1	Knife crime offence trends June 2001–March 2004 (TPHQ, 2004: 3)	157
Fig. 4.2	Victims of knife-enabled crime June 2003–March 2004: By age (TPHQ, 2004)	158
Fig. 4.3	Knife crime Injuries June 2003–March 2004: By offence and seriousness (TPHQ, 2004: 11, 12)	158
Fig. 4.4	News media image of weapons said to be confiscated by the police in 2003	163
Fig. 4.5	News media image accompanying article on a knife crime crackdown in Strathclyde (1999) (Image copied from ‘Knife Culture...’, 1999)	164
Fig. 4.6	Further uses of the ‘knife array’ in Scottish news reporting (Image copied from ‘ Police Target Knife ... ’, 2000, and ‘ Scotland Tops ... ’, 2000)	165
Fig. 4.7	The ‘knife array’ photograph on a children’s TV News website, 2003 (Image copied from ‘ Knife Crime Getting ... ’, 2004)	166
Fig. 4.8	The ‘knife array’ photograph utilised in support of new school search powers (Image copied from ‘ Knife fears could... ’, 2004)	167
Fig. 4.9	The ‘knife array’ photograph utilised in justify the use of knife arch scanners at stations (Image copied from ‘ Rail police mount ... ’, 2006)	168
Fig. 4.10	The ‘knife array’ photograph used in 2008 when questioning ‘knife crime’ reporting (Image copied from Warren, 2008, Is Knife Crime Really Increasing?)	169
Fig. 4.11	Police stops and searches in England and Wales 2000–2019. Total searches and those under Section 1 (PACE) and Section 60 (CJPO)—excluding S.44	182

Fig. 4.12	Apparent disproportionality in stop and search: 2009–2019. Stops per 1000 people	184
Fig. 5.1	The knife crime timeline 2010–2020	198
Fig. 5.2	Frequency of articles containing the terms ‘ gang crime ’, ‘ gun crime ’ or ‘ knife crime ’ in National Newspapers 1990–2007. Data from Lexis-Nexis (Graph reconstructed from Sveinsson, 2008: 6)	205
Fig. 5.3	Frequency of articles with the term ‘knife culture’ included 1997–2014 (Graph prepared using data from ProQuest—National and regional papers in England and Wales)	206
Fig. 5.4	Frequency of articles with the term ‘knife crime’ included 1997–2014 (Graph prepared using data from ProQuest—National and regional papers in England and Wales)	207
Fig. 5.5	Cuts in youth service spending 2010–2016 (Source Unison, 2016: 4)	214
Fig. 5.6	The collapse of youth services in the UK (Source Unison, 2016: 5)	214
Fig. 5.7	Rising Knife Crime after 2014: England and Wales/Thousands (Source Allen & Kirk-Wade, 2020, and Crime in England and Wales: Appendix Tables. Table A4, Police Recorded Crime 2008–2009 to 2019–2020)	225
Fig. 5.8	Images of and from Operation Sceptre 2017–2021 (Source Screen grabs from Operation Sceptre Police Publicity web-pages)	235
Fig. 6.1	Don’t cut your time short image branding (Accessed: Twitter.com, 12 March 2018)	255
Fig. 6.2	Promoting the new Home Office ‘knife free’ campaign, March 2018 (Accessed: Twitter.com, 23 March 2018)	260
Fig. 6.3	Community anti-knife campaigns, March 22, 2018 (Accessed: Twitter.com, 22 March 2018)	262
Fig. 6.4	Eastenders ‘knife crime’ story line, and reaction, 2018 (Accessed: Twitter.com, 22 March 2018)	265
Fig. 6.5	Trauma care conference ‘knife crime’ rebranding, 2018 (Accessed: Twitter.com, 19 March 2018)	266
Fig. 6.6	The knife angel sculpture (Accessed: Twitter.com, 18 March 2019)	268

Fig. 6.7	Police tweeting of knife crime imagery to promote school presentations (Accessed: Twitter.com, 12 March 2018)	272
Fig. 6.8	Butter knife—stretching the label too far? (Accessed: Twitter.com, 16 March 2018)	275
Fig. 6.9	Critical tweets directed at London Mayor, Sadiq Khan (Accessed: Twitter.com, 2 March 2018; Accessed: Twitter.com, 20 March)	278
Fig. 6.10	Riding racist tweets on the back of knife crime problem (Accessed: Twitter.com, 27 March 2018; Accessed: Twitter.com, 25 March 2018)	279
Fig. 8.1	Cross cutting risk factors for violence (Source Adapted from WHO, 2002, 2014; Rutherford et al., 2007; Bellis et al., 2012: 27; Ward, 2015; Coid et al., 2021)	338

Index of Learning Exercises and Study Questions

Learning Exercise 1: Opening Questions

Learning Exercise 2: Discussing the Data

Learning Exercise 3: Accounting for Twentieth Century Violence

Discussion Topic 4: Historical Concerns About Knife Violence

Learning Exercise 5: End of Chapter Activity, Alternative Accounts of Knife Violence

Learning Exercise 6: Discussion Activity: The Many Uses of Knives

Learning Exercise 7: Knife Crime Poems and Reflect Upon What They Might Mean

Learning Exercise 8: Knife Fighting Cultures

Learning Exercise 9: Analysis Exercise

Learning Exercise 10: Recap and Reflection:

Learning Exercise 11: Examining Knife Crime Reporting

Learning Exercise 12: Assessing the Evidence About Stop and Search

Learning Exercise 13: Knife Crime Rising Again

Learning Exercise 14: Examining Knife Crime on Twitter

Learning Exercise 15: The Commodification of Knife Violence

Learning Exercise 16: Analysis Activity—What Did Our Interviewees Think?

Learning Exercise 17: A Public Health Strategy—Checking your Understanding Learning Exercise 18: Crime Prevention Propaganda? What Is It Saying?

Learning Exercise 19: Exploring Violence Reduction Units