

From: ECNO@wiley.com [ECNO@wiley.com]
Sent: 17 December 2015 20:24
To: Gabriella Cagliesi
Subject: Status update to your article in Economic Notes - ECNO12053

Dear Dr Gabriella Cagliesi,

Journal: Economic Notes

Article title: "The Euro-Dollar exchange rate: how traders' behaviour has been affected by the 2007-2008 financial crisis"

Your article is currently at the following stage of production:

Stage 3 (of 4): Author corrections have now been received by the publisher. We are making your corrections and preparing to publish your article. If your journal article is published EarlyView (online ahead of being assigned an issue), please understand that there may be a short delay from when your corrections are received and when it is published online.

To view the status of your article online please visit:

<http://authorservices.wiley.com/bauthor/default.asp?email=cm55@gre.ac.uk> and log in using your username (e-mail address) and password.

You have registered in Author Services with the username: cm55@gre.ac.uk

For many journals, you can opt to receive printed offprints by registering with the printer's website; a link is included on the Author Services My Publications page if this service is available for your journal. See Offprint Information<<http://authorservices.wiley.com/bauthor/offprint.asp>> for further details: <http://authorservices.wiley.com/bauthor/offprint.asp>.

OnlineOpen - Open Access Option

Make your article free for all to read, download, and share through

OnlineOpen<<http://olabout.wiley.com/WileyCDA/Section/id-406241.html>>. This increases the potential audience for your article, which can translate into: higher readership, increased citations and greater visibility of your work. How? You, or your funding agency or institution pays a fee of between US$2,000 and US$5,000 to make your article open access. Simply log into your Author Services account and click on the 'Make my article OnlineOpen' button next to your article. You can also access the OnlineOpen order form<https://authorservices.wiley.com/bauthor/onlineopen_order.asp?ArticleID=4625884> for your article directly. If you do not wish to use OnlineOpen and make your article open access; we will publish your article in Economic Notes and it will be available to paid subscribers.

If you have any queries regarding the publication of your article, please contact the Production Editor by replying to this e-mail.

This e-mail alert is for your article in Economic Notes. You can customize this service by logging in to Author Services and amending your details in the registration area.

Wiley Author Services

...enhancing your publishing experience